

CPI Appoints Stuart Pohler as Recovered Paper Sector Manager

CPI is pleased to announce the appointment of Stuart Pohler as its Recovered Paper Sector Manager.

Stuart joins CPI with a wealth of experience in the Waste Management Industry. Between 2005 and 2009, Stuart held the position of Recycling Manager for Ealing Borough Council, during which time the recycling rate more than doubled.

Most recently, Stuart was employed as Principal Consultant for Waste Management at Entec, a UK based environmental and engineering consultancy. In this role, Stuart was responsible for providing technical and advisory support to local authorities involved in the procurement of waste management services, and bid development services to several national and multinational organisations in support of Private Finance Initiatives. Stuart has also written guidance for WRAP.

David Workman, CPI Director General, said: "Stuart strengthens our expertise in Waste Management and Recycling issues as increasingly complex and important regulatory issues continue to develop. In particular, the transposition of the EU Waste Framework Directive into national laws and national waste strategies for each of the UK administrations, will be of critical importance for our members, and Stuart will have a key role to play in ensuring proposals are realistic and workable."
